CONGRESSIONAL UPDATE

Congress finally ended the 10-week-long shutdown of the Department of Homeland Security when the House approved, and the President signed a measure to fund the bulk of the agency. The House also narrowly advanced a Farm bill, which includes significant updates to food and agriculture programs. The Senate must now consider its own version.

MIDTERM STATE OF PLAY

With just about six months to go before the midterm elections, the political landscape continues to shift dramatically. In the last week alone, the Supreme Court issued a landmark ruling on the Voting Rights Act, the state of Florida advanced a new mid-decade redistricting map, and the Maine U.S. Senate race had a surprising development.
